Courtesy campaign gets a comic twist

Parody. 'MTA Shames NYC,' and comedy duo shames the MTA back — all in good fun.

A New York comedy duo is sticking it to the MTA for its "preachy" new subway courtesy campaign — and announcements that they say "cross the line of morality."

And it's all in good fun. Lots of fun.

In a comedy skit called "MTA Shames NYC" that is nearing 50,000 views on YouTube, Megan Sass and Gianmarco Soresi land some solid punches ... uh, we mean, punchlines.

Soresi, 26, says he was taken aback when new

The comedy duo's revised announcements

- "Ladies and gentlemen, hundreds of civilians die every day in the Middle East because of American bomb. If you aren't calling your congressman to make it stop, you are responsible."
- "Also, dogs are better than cats."
- Then the Starbucks set are set upon. The announcer urges riders to donate 10 percent of their income "to fight the spread of Ebola in Africa."

- "That double shot soy chai latte is delicious, but perhaps you can just drink a fing cup of coffee and save someone's life! That means you, Sheila."

announcements started playing over and over in January.

"They need to fix their s—t before they get up in our business," the actor, stand-up comedian, and writer tells Metro, half-jokingly.

It's not that he disagrees with what the MTA is saying, says Soresi.

Don't even get him going when someone on the 2 or 3 train he takes almost daily is playing Candy Crush without head phones. ("That's when I go right up to them and say, 'Please turn it down!'")

Rather, it's about tone, he says, and language choice.

Funny lady Sass agrees. "They crossed the line into morality," she said.

So she and Soresi, who met about a year ago, collaborated on "MTA Shames NYC" and crossed some lines themselves, says the "20-something" actress, writer, and prolific comedy sketch artist.

She credits Soresi with the idea and the two decided to answer this question: "What if the announcements just kept getting more preachy?"

So, on a guerilla video shoot on a downtown A train, the pair, videographer Andy Zou, and a group of performers got together and the result was Metrocard Magic.

MTA wags its finger

The MTA launched the Courtesy Counts campaign on the subways in January with new audio announcements and graphically-enhanced placards in 2,600 cars that it illustrate the list of "Do's" — and a list what MTA Corporate Communications calls "No No's."

"The messages serve to remind the MTA's 8.6 million daily customers that they can help make the trip quicker and more pleasant by demonstrating a personal, consistent commitment to courtesy," the agency said in statement in December.

The "Do's"

- "Step Aside to Let Others Off First"
- "Keep Your Stuff to Yourself"
- "Take Your Pack Off Your Back"
- "Offer Your Seat to an Elderly, Disabled, or Pregnant Person"
- "Take Your Litter Off With You"
- "Keep the Sound Down"

The "No No's"

- "Pole Are For Your Safety, Not Your Latest Routine"
- "Don't be a Pole Hog"
- "It's a Subway Car Not a Dining Car"
- "Dude.....Stop the Spread, Please"

Spring? Warmer weather for the week, but chances of light rain and snow by Friday

After a freezing February, New Yorkers are being treated to above-normal temperatures for the next few days.

John Murray, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service, said average temperatures this time of year are in the lower 30s. This week's highs in the 40s and 50s are due to a fast-moving, high-pressure pattern moving through the city.

"This certainly has been a relatively warmer stretch than what we've been seeing recently in terms of consecutive days of 40-plus readings for higher temperatures," Murray said.

Tuesday will see a high of 50 degrees, with a chance for rain beginning in the early afternoon and increasing throughout the afternoon. Temperatures will dip into the upper 30s overnight.

Wednesday will be dry, with highs in the lower 50s. Thursday should be precipitation-free, with a chance of rain and snow again on Friday and Saturday.

Q&A: What drives false confessions?

Strategy. The defense for Etan Patz's alleged killer says the videotaped confession isn't real.

Pedro Hernandez / FILE

Attorneys for the man on trial for the 1979 disappearance and death of Etan Patz spent Monday laying out its case by arguing the case against Pedro Hernandez is based on a false videotaped confession.

Prosecutors, who rested their case Friday, previously argued that Hernandez's 2012 confession in a New Jersey police station after more than six hours of interrogation was only one in a series of incriminating statements he made linking him to the death.

Metro asked Steven Drizin, law professor at Most false confessions, however, are the result of psychologically coercive interrogations. Police interrogation tactics are designed to persuade a suspect that it's futile to deny responsibility for the crime and in the suspect's best interests to confess.

Who may be more susceptible to falsely confess to a crime?

Although every person is susceptible to falsely confessing — we all have our breaking points — some suspects are more vulnerable than others, including juveniles and those with intellectual disabilities.

Brakes eyed as cause of Delta crash

A brake problem may have caused a Delta Air Lines Inc jet to skid off a runway at New York's LaGuardia Airport last week, according to testimony from the flight's crew, federal safety investigators said Monday. The auto brakes were set to "max," but the crew "did not sense any wheel brake deceleration" before the plane crashed into a fence, the National Transportation Safety Board said in a statement. It added that the brake switch was found in the "max" position during the investigation.

"The captain reported that he was unable to prevent the airplane from drifting left," the agency said, confirming earlier media reports. The Boeing Co MD-88 aircraft stopped just feet from the icy waters of Flushing Bay, its left wing and other parts damaged.

"Investigators with the Airworthiness group will continue to examine and test the anti-skid, auto-brake and thrust reverser systems today," it added.

The youth hostel industry could be worth $178 million a year, according to Hostelworld International. The youth travel industry worldwide is expected to be worth $30 billion by 2020.

New York City is missing out on millions of tourism dollars from young student travelers, and a city council bill wants to breathe new life into the stalled industry.

Councilman Mark Weprin (D-Queens) introduced a bill on Monday that would legalize youth hostels licensed by the city, allowing up to eight beds per room in commercial districts where hotels currently can't be built.

A 2010 law changed the state's multiple dwelling law, aimed at snuffing out illegal hotels, but also caused about 50 local hostels to close. Hostel advocates say that move is costing the city $280 million a year in lost tourism.

"We had to adjust our bed count down, and basically what you did is cut your beds in half and doubled your price," said Tim O'Reilly, who manages the Chelsea International Hostel on West 20th Street. "Being one of the few hostels left in Manhattan, our downstroke was not that terrible, it took us a few months to readjust, reconfigure and retool. Now you're getting $50 a bed when before you were charging $25 a bed."

O'Reilly, who was part owner in three hostels shut down by the city, said at one time he had 800 beds, and now has just 175.

"My biggest issue [with the 2010 law] was you're telling us what we can't do. Tell us what we can do," O'Reilly said. "In that respect, this bill is starting to get to that point."

Apple Watch: five things you need to know

APPLE WATCH / GETTY IMAGES

Apple's event on Monday, cleverly named "Spring Forward," featured the Apple Watch. If you weren't able to tune in to the event, here are the five things you need to know:

1. The cost

The Apple Watch will be available in three distinct families divided primarily by the material from which they are made. All will come in two screen sizes: 38 mm and 44 mm. The lowest-priced Apple Watch will cost $349 for the 38mm version and $399 for the 44mm version. The most expensive Apple Watch will be made of 18 carat gold. Prices for that timepiece will start at $10,000 and it will be available at select stores.

2. The battery

A major concern about the Apple Watch has been how long the device's battery would last. Apple CEO Tim Cook boasted that an average day's use will result in the battery lasting 18 hours. One energy saving feature - the glance - permits the watch's screen to light up only when looked at.

3. The Apps

A host of apps were announced and presented to the event's audience. With the Apple Watch, users can make phone calls, send texts, read and send emails, unlock doors and open garages remotely. Apple Pay will be coming to watch as well.

4. Options, options, options

One of the aspects of the Apple Watch that the company was most emphatic about was the menu of options available for users in regards to the look and function of the watch. Apple Watch customers will have a variety of wrist bands and watch faces literally at your fingertips.

MATT LEE, METRO

Question

5. When can I get one?

Apple announced that the Apple Watch will be available for pre-orders on April 10th and also available to try in stores on the same day.

Derailed train in Street-level. The Carolinian was on its routine daily trip when it struck a tractor trailer stuck on a grade crossing.

Another street-level train crossing — and another frightening train accident.

Except this time no one died.

The engine of a New York City-bound Amtrak train toppled over, derailling two passenger cars in Halifax, North Carolina, Monday after slamming into a tractor-trailer that several witnesses say appeared to have gotten stuck on the tracks of a grade crossing.

"Oh, my God! Oh, my God!" a woman who caught the moment of impact is heard screaming from her car in a video posted on Twitter and YouTube.

More than 60 passengers were hospitalized with non-life-threatening injuries, officials with the North Carolina Department of Transportation said.

There were 200 people on board the train — The Carolinian — which runs daily and was to make stops in Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, Delaware, Trenton, and New York's Penn Station.

"There was a massive jerk and we were kind of thrown forward a little bit, and the train came to a sudden stop," Charlotte Story, a student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill who was in the seventh car, told local CBS affiliate WRAL.

A passenger making the 10-hour trip north to New York City, 21-year-old Patrick Narmi, said the conductor slammed on the brakes moment before the accident and he watched out the window what happened next.

"A few seconds later, I heard the impact. ... The train ran right through it,"

Quoted

"I couldn't tell you if it was trying to slow down or not. It came completely out of the blue." Charlotte Story he told the Raleigh News & Observer. Narmi flew from his seat and landed head-first into the seat in front of him, before falling to the floor.

Story also said that the breaking was sudden: "I couldn't tell you if it was trying to slow down or not. ... It came completely out of the blue."

Things could have been far worse, as recent history has shown.

Just last month, north of New York City, an MTA Metro-North train packed with evening rush-hour commuters trying to get home slammed into an SUV on the tracks of a grade crossing in the Westchester hamlet of Valhalla.

NC injures dozens

Emergency officials respond to a train that derailed Monday in North Carolina. / ABC 11 WTVB pierced the first car, killing six people, including five men and the woman driving the SUV.

Regulators and rail advocates have, for years, called for better safety at grade crossings, where the only thing between cars and a barreling train is a stick wood crossing gate.

After the Metro-North tragedy, Sens. Charles

Schumer of New York and Richard Blumenthal of Connecticut, called for increased funding to upgrade safety at accident-prone crossings. In 2013 alone, 200 people died at similar crossings.

"It is critical that the federal government do more to make engineering upgrades at accident-prone crossings, boost public awareness of the dangers at such crossings, and improve reporting of dangerous problems at crossings," Schumer said.

Their Highway-Rail Grade Crossing Safety Act of 2015 would boost funding for the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA), states and municipalities to make engineering and safety upgrades, like installing new lights and signals.

The FRA said Monday it will probe the Amtrak collision and the National Transportation Safety Board said it was monitoring developments. Amtrak officials plan their own investigation.

The train hit the mid-section of the tractor-trailer, which one local Halifax woman said was going back and forth trying to maneuver a turn from U.S. Route 301 onto a more narrow two-lane road.

Five things you need to know

US offers $5M for missing American, appeals to Iran

The United States offered $5 million on Monday for help in finding an American who disappeared in Iran eight years ago and appealed to Tehran to cooperate in the search for the former FBI agent, Robert Levinson.

"We ask the Government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to work cooperatively with us on the investigation into Robert Levinson's disappearance so we can ensure his safe return," Secretary of State John Kerry said in a statement.

The White House National Security Council said it was "committed to the safe return of Bob Levinson to his family."

Levinson disappeared from Kish Island, an Iranian resort in the Gulf, on March 9, 2007, while on a business trip as a private investigator. His friends said he had been investigating illicit trafficking in cigarettes, mainly in Latin America.

Levinson traveled to Kish to meet Daoud Salahuddin, an American wanted in the murder of an Iranian diplomat in a Washington, D.C., suburb in 1980. Levinson's friends have said he believed Salahuddin had information on corruption in Iran. Salahuddin has denied knowing what happened to Levinson. REUTERS

Republicans warn Iran nuclear deal with Obama may not last

Republican U.S. senators warned Iran's leaders on Monday that any nuclear deal with President Barack Obama could last only as long as he remains in office, an unusual partisan intervention into foreign policy that could undermine delicate international talks with Tehran.

The open letter was signed by 47 senators, all but seven of the Republicans in the Senate, and none of Obama's fellow Democrats, who called it a "stunt." It says Congress plays a role in ratifying international agreements and points out that Obama will leave office in January 2017. REUTERS

U of Oklahoma closes frat linked to racist video

The University of Oklahoma closed a fraternity linked to a video of students singing racial epithets, ordered its members to move out of the house and labeled the actions of those involved "disgraceful."

"Effective immediately, all ties and affiliations between the university and the local SAE chapter are hereby severed," University President David Boren said.

Members have until midnight on Tuesday to vacate the premises. REUTERS

Obama emailed Clinton on her private address: White House

President Barack Obama and Hillary Clinton exchanged emails during her time as secretary of state, the White House said on Monday, confirming the president was aware that his potential successor used a private email address for government work.

Obama said in an interview with CBS on Saturday that he found out about Clinton's use of a personal email account through recent news reports, but White House spokesman Josh Earnest said Obama was aware of her address earlier. REUTERS

Stand-alone service for HBO coming to Apple devices

HBO's stand-alone streaming service will launch on Apple Inc. devices next month in time for the season premiere of the hit series "Game of Thrones," the network said on Monday, a move to reach millions of viewers who do not subscribe to pay television packages.

The new HBO Now service will cost $14.99 a month. It will include all of the network's past, present and future series plus its lineup of Hollywood movies. REUTERS

Today, Bette Midler is feeling pretty popular, Neil Patrick Harris had apparently fallen out of love with the theater, Olivia Wilde is deep undercover and Taylor Swift has been having some wild nights.

More Lindsay Lohan legal trouble

There's always something to keep Lindsay Lohan's lawyers busy, and if it's not suspicious community service hours claims, it's angry former business partners. Fima Potik previously sued Lohan and her younger brother for $60 million for allegedly stealing an idea for a mobile app that lets users see inside celebrities' closets. He didn't get the huge payout, but he did get a restraining order against the Lohans stopping them from launching their version of the app. Now he's suing them because they have so irreparably harmed his business that he can't even afford that restraining order, according to Radar Online. Lohan's attorney calls the claims the long list of people who wish they'd never met Lohan.

Everything wrong with the new Bill Cosby video

Showing further signs of not-terribly-great judgment, Bill Cosby released an awkward, amateur-ish video message to promote an upcoming gig. In it, the embattled, comic icon is on the phone trying to convince someone to come see the show. "You know I'll be hilarious," he says in the 10-second clip, first released to ABC News. He accompanied the video with a written message: "Dear fans, I hope you enjoy my wonderful video message," he writes, before adding "Hey, Hey, Hey, I'm far from finished." While the video might not be as wonderful as he insists, it does raise an awful lot of questions: Is that a rotary phone? Do those still work on modern phone lines? Why is this shot like an ISIS hostage video? Are those silk pajamas? Also, why is he holding the phone to his nostril? Also, can we address how terrible a slogan "I'm far from finished" is for a man accused of more than 30 separate, horrific acts of sexual assault?

Taylor Swift got to give one of her patented "aw shucks" looks of surprise when she looked into insuring her legs — as you do — only to learn they're worth $40 million, according to the National Enquirer. "She thought her legs were possibly worth a million. But $40 million shocked her. She's even a little embarrassed about it," a source says. "It seems like a ludicrous sum, but if something was to happen to her legs, Taylor wouldn't be able to give her signature stage performances. Her $200 million career would be in big trouble." It's with that thinking that Swift is reportedly going forward, embarrassment be damned. "She wants it all sorted out before her world tour starts in May," the source adds.

Netflix Instant

If you need an escape to the carefree, sunny days to come once the city thaws, there are few better ways than this typically breezy, 1996 chat-a-thon from French legend Eric Rohmer. Reissued last year, it's another of the director's precise studies of the neuroses of love, with a scruffy-haired collegiate (Melvil Poupaud) romancing multiple girls while on seaside holiday. And as ever, no one navigates the complexities and absurdities of the human heart like Rohmer.

The latest '80s nostalgia item to get revamped will be Don Bluth's faithless take on Robert C. O'Brien's novel, about super-intelligent mice who've escaped the lab. It was a milestone at the time — the first film from a group of disgruntled Disney animators who decamped and formed their own rival company.

Thriller

'Three Days of the Condor'

Netflix Instant

The '70s teemed with paranoid conspiracy thrillers. Compared to "The Parallax View," this is almost upbeat. Robert Redford is a CIA analyst who becomes the target of the CIA itself, and even finds love with the innocent woman (Faye Dunaway) he forces to become his protector. Things can never be that bad for Robert Redford.

The Breakthrough: Actress Tina Desai

Introductions.

Meet the young female star of "The Second Best Exotic Marigold Hotel."

In "The Second Best Exotic Marigold Hotel," Indian actress Tina Desai returns to her role as the flustered paramour of hotelier Dev Patel. Desai, who will soon be on the Wachowskis' Netflix show "Sense8," tells us all about herself.

Perk of fame she's most looking forward to taking advantage of: "Free makeup! I was just offered that by my makeup artist. It doesn't get better. Oh, and when you get to travel a bit more. And you get to stay at Claridge's, which I hear is such a big deal."

Biggest audition blunder:

"I had just moved to Bombay from Bangalore, and we don't speak much Hindi there. I went to this audition for a TV serial, and TV serials in India can have pages and pages of dialogue. I spent about three hours trying to learn it and I was still getting the grammar wrong. They kind of looked at me arrogantly like, 'I see. You don't know your own language.' We're very blunt in India. We don't sugarcoat anything. 'You're crap. Those are rubbish shoes.'"

The last thing she Googled: "The weather in London. I wanted to know whether I would freeze or not at the premiere."

Last book she read: "I'm still reading it. It's Elmore Leonard's 'Freaky Deaky.' It was a gift to me from Bill Nighy, actually, because I was reading some other books that he completely trashed and said, 'You will not read this! It was a controversial writer who he felt really strongly about.'"

The best person to follow on Twitter or Instagram: "Ellen DeGeneres. She's really funny. I love following her. There's also Obama, because I'm interested in politics."

What happens after you die: "I don't know myself. There are so many people that say you go to Heaven, you go to Hell, you come back to earth reincarnated. I don't get any of them. I would prefer that you just die and that's it, nothing happens after. That makes a little bit more sense. You come here, you do your thing and that's it."

Tina Desai (with Dev Patel) returns in "The Best Exotic Marigold Hotel."

Bonus question

Her dream role

"Two things really excite me, though I have no idea how I'll do them. One is to do something completely fantasy-based, like a 'Pirates of the Caribbean' or a 'Harry Potter' or 'Lord of the Rings,' which is something that's completely based on imagination, so you can do whatever you want. I don't know how strong my imagination is, I might completely muck it up."

"The other one would be to do a biopic, and then you have no freedom. You have to completely follow that person, look like them, talk like, think like them. Those are both extremely difficult, but I think they would be fun. I really think I might muck it up like hell."

Gillian Flynn's book club recipe

Hosting. Here's what to serve while discussing the latest suspense novel.

Even casual book club members know that half the fun of discussing the latest "it" book is eating and drinking while you do so. Now, there's a new book that will help you plan the perfect menu. Former Cosmopolitan editor-in-chief Kate White has put together "The Mystery Writers of America Cookbook" (out March 24), full of recipes from modern literary favorites such as Lee Child, Mary Higgins Clark and James Patterson. Here, we share "Gone Girl" author Gillian Flynn's recipe for Beef Skillet Fiesta.

Beef Skillet Fiesta

Recipe by: Gillian Flynn
I am no gourmet. I come from a long, proud Midwestern tradition of meals made from snack chips and canned soup. My characters tend to follow suit: They like their food simple and tasty. So here's my favorite stove-top recipe, Beef Skillet Fiesta:

Ingredients

- 1 pound ground beef
- ¼ cup diced onion
- 2 teaspoons salt

A delicious look at Gillian Flynn's Beef Skillet Fiesta. / STEVE LEGATO

- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- 1 16-ounce can diced tomatoes
- 1 12-ounce can corn
- 1¼ cups beef bouillon
- ½ cup thin strips of green pepper

- 1½ cups Minute rice

Directions:

1 Brown ground beef in a skillet and drain. Add onion and cook until tender.

2 Add salt, chili powder, pepper, tomatoes, corn, and bouillon and bring to a boil. Stir in green pepper. Bring to a boil again.

3 Stir in rice, remove from heat, and cover. Let stand for 5 minutes.

4 Fluff with a fork.

5 Serve with cottage cheese. (The cottage cheese part isn't strictly required, but highly recommended — cottage cheese makes everything better.)

Note: If you prefer regular rice to Minute rice, cook the rice separately and spoon the Skillet Fiesta over it.

R&B. Jazmine Sullivan knows 'Forever Don't Last' on her Reality TV-inspired new album

So what has R&B star Jazmine Sullivan been doing since she released her last album four years ago? Watching reality TV.

Actually, Sullivan, who's touring in support of her chart-topping new album "Reality TV," has a good reason why she's been out of the game, but we'll get to that later.

First, why reality TV? "The mess of it all kind of kept my attention," says the "Bust Your Windows" singer. "It definitely influenced the album."

The influence is apparent in several compelling character studies on "Reality TV," such as the body-modifying model on "Mascara."

"People are drawn to the fact that [reality TV stars] were normal people like them. When you look at stars — actors and singers — they seem to be far away," Sullivan says. "With reality shows, it gives us a way to be the same as the people we're watching on TV. People want to feel that we're all the same."

The same, that is, if you also have your neighbor's weave in your hands after a tussle in front of the cameras.

As for "Reality TV" the album, it's full of smart, diverse grooves.

Sullivan gets into car-window-smashing mode on the urgent "Dumb," which features a guest rhyme from Meek Mill. "Silver Lining" recalls the jazzy flows of Stevie Wonder's '70s jams, and "Let It Burn" has a synthpop, early-'80s R&B vibe. The snappy "Stupid Girl" brings a retro sizzle.

As for why Sullivan left music, that's referred to on the track "Forever Don't Last," a powerhouse acoustic ballad in which she gives a wait-here-and-listen-to-this vocal performance: The 27-year-old was in an abusive relationship. "You have to decide that you're the most important person ... and once you believe that," she says of moving on, "then you won't allow yourself to stay in a situation that's not healthy."

Urban mom top pick

Get yourself the right stroller

While a large, fancy-pants stroller is amazing for everyday use (especially grocery shopping), it can be a nightmare on the subway as these giant, sturdy contraptions rarely fold up easily. Instead, keep a collapsible stroller on hand.

"My favorite is a lightweight umbrella-type stroller, like the UPPAbaby G-Luxe," says Manz. "It's great because it's light enough that you can actually carry your kid in it up and down the stairs of the subway if it doesn't have an elevator." The Baby Jogger City Mini is also a sturdy choice that folds up in two seconds flat.

The UPPAbaby G-Luxe is one of Stroller in the City blogger Brienne Manz's top picks. / PROVIDED

The best subway-friendly baby gear

Hacks. Stroller in the City blogger Brienne Manz shares her tips.

If there's one thing city moms must quickly master, it's the art of shuffling around with a baby - let alone two! Getting the kiddies around town with ease actually isn't all that hard once you know the insider tricks, mommy blogger Brienne Manz of Stroller in the City tells us. We got her tips on her favorite gear for taking the headache out of commuting with kids.

Consider a scooter or stroller board

As your infant grows into a toddler, using a wearable may literally become a pain in the neck. For Manz, investing in a mini-scooter for her older child was a lifesaver. "The Mini Kick is great for getting your toddler around town because they can scoot along a little faster if you're by yourself with them," she says. "If you have another child in the stroller, they can also ride next to you on the scooter."

It's when you have to move more than one child that commuting in the city gets a little tricky; double strollers aren't the easiest to lug on and off a packed subway train. Instead, try putting the littlest one in a single stroller while the oldest scoots along on an attached stroller board, like the Buggy Board.

The key — for babies as well as toddlers — is choosing products that can fold up easily, so carting them around is hassle-free.

Hands-free

Wear your baby

Wearing your little one on the subway or bus makes it that much easier to get around. For starters, it eliminates the hassle of pushing a stroller (a bit of a game changer during rush hour). Another bonus? If the baby is facing in with a cover, it'll help protect them from yucky subway grime.

"The Ergo 360 is probably the best," Manz says. "It's good for your back, you don't really feel that much weight, and you won't feel crippled after you're running around town."

What graffiti and Trump have in common

I think the posters reminding people to stand clear of the OPENING doors (and other etiquette) actually help. But couldn't they make posters all around town that remind the people who do lame graffiti tagging that only losers with low self-esteem do tagging? If we make that point enough, no one will want to tag their names, because they'll be ashamed, now that everyone sees thru their childish desire to have their name everywhere. They're like a ghetto Donald Trump! I'm so fed up with this crappy tagging and the immature motives of those who do it. Is anyone in charge?

Taking women seriously

Re: 'Being for women doesn't mean being against men' (Metro, March 9) No it doesn't. That is a distracting point. The issue is soft sexism in which so-called "feminists," men or women, encourage women to stereotype themselves. Women will always be second-class citizens since being "feminine" (which actually means being trashy or flirty or seductive) is their priority rather than having a more male sense of self-seriousness.

Free agency frenzy underway

NFL. Big names are finding new landing spots.

Christmas comes early for a number of teams under the increased salary cap of $143 million.

Tuesday begins the NFL's free-agent frenzy, and with as many as six teams (Eagles, Jets, Titans, Browns, Raiders and Jaguars) enjoying as much as $44 million in cap space, the 4 p.m. commencement should be fun to watch.

The Jags lead the way with a whopping $68.47 million under the raised cap, but that doesn't mean every A-plus star will flock to Florida, as a contender like the Eagles ($44.766 million) will also have the ability to steal away a few big names.

Here's a look at four of the most sought-after targets during the whirlwind:

TONY WILLIAMS
and MATT BURKE

Visit Metro.us to see why the Jets won't break the bank on Revis.

Darrelle Revis, CB

The Patriots declined to pick up Revis' $20 million option Monday, which was expected. But New England must move fast to re-sign the man who changed the face of their championship defense in 2014. Revis is every bit the impact player that's advertised as during his only year in New England, he helped hold opposing quarterbacks to a passer rating of just 74.7 and helped the defense match the excellence of their offensive brethren.

DARRELLE REVIS
GETTY IMAGES

Cornerbacks the caliber of Revis rarely hit the open market, so he'll definitely receive his fair share of calls. One of those will undoubtedly be from the New York Jets, who have been hot for Revis for a while now. Metro's Kristian Dyer reported Monday on Metro.us, however, that the Jets "wouldn't break the piggy bank" to bring Revis back. A high-ranking source did say, however, that the Jets' interest is strong in the All-Pro corner. Landing spots: Patriots, Jets

DeMarco Murray, RB

The Cowboys chose to franchise wideout Dez Bryant instead of arguably the league's best running back, but don't cry poverty for Murray, who will most definitely cash in somewhere — whether it be Dallas or someplace else. Many thought the star back would head back to Dallas after it seemed like the running back market would dry up even before it started, but then the Bills threw a wrench into that thinking when they traded for LeSean McCoy

DeMarco Murray heads the RB market. / GETTY IMAGES and then reportedly offered a five-year extension that included $26.5 million in guarantees. Murray's agency team will likely use McCoy's offering as leverage. Landing spots: Cowboys, Jaguars

Julius Thomas, WR

The guy who made the phrase "too easy" famous will not make it easy for the Broncos to re-sign him. Landing spots: Jaguars, Seahawks, Broncos

JULIUS THOMAS

Greg Hardy, DE

Greg Hardy is the ultimate gamble, as his legal issues — he missed 15 games in 2014 as he appealed a ruling that said he assaulted his ex-girlfriend — should force teams to stay away. When on the field, he is terrific as he racked up 15 sacks in 2013. Landing spots: Colts, Bengals

Manic Monday

A lot went down in the NFL world Monday:

- The Texans flat-out released wide receiver Andre Johnson, making him a free agent.
- Houston also made headlines by making the decision to re-sign QB Ryan Mallett. The team is also prepared to acquire fellow former Patriots backup, Brian Hoyer.
- 49ers linebacker Patrick Willis will reportedly retire.

Rangers, Isles meet once more

Yet another battle of New York will take place Tuesday as the Rangers visit Nassau Coliseum (7 p.m., MSG-plus). The Islanders have beaten the Rangers in three out of four meetings this season.
